Canaan's capital, Haran, is described as "the oldest known city in the world" and features five stories and a basement for stashing food. Residents may have to wait until July, because it is not clear if the city is free of pterosaurs, ancient winged reptiles. This could threaten the five level cities below Canaan, which are also home to a well preserved riverside village said to be the largest ancient settlement in Israel. But according to archaeologists digging at Canaan it may take years for a verdict on their finds to be announced. There are no plans to evacuate the ancient site, says local
